

Ph.D. Field Requirements

For students entering the program Fall 2013 and later.

	CORE COURSE REQUIREMENTS	OTHER REQUIRED COURSES	FOCUS AREAS
AMERICAN POLITICS	251. American Political Institutions  AND  252. American Politics: Behavior  OR  257. Voting and Elections	1. Two graduate seminars numbered  POLI 252-257 and 261- 265  POLI 259s or other courses may be used by petition to the American Field Coordinator.  2. Methods Reqmt:  POLI 204B  POLI 271  AND  One additional approved methods or analytical theory course to be completed before advancement to candidacy	American Institutions American Political Development Analytical Theory and Methods Congress Courts and Public Law Elections, Voting, and the Media Parties and Political Organizations Presidency and Executive Branch Urban Politics
COMPARATIVE POLITICS	220B. Comp Politics: Institutions  AND  220A. Comp Politics: State and Society	1. At least one seminar in political development, democratization, or regime change  2. One additional seminar in comparative politics	East and Southeast Asia Europe Latin America Soviet Union and Eastern Europe Africa Comparative Political Economy (Developed and Developing Countries) Regimes and Regime Transitions Comparative Political Institutions (Governmental Institutions and Parties) Civil Conflict

			Comparative Political Behavior (voting, protest, participation in high risk collective action, social movements) Political Public Policy
INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS	240. International Relations Theory	Three graduate seminars numbered  POLI 242-248  IRPS IP/Gen 200-220 (except 209)  To be taken for at least one year.  283. Workshop in Int'l Relations	Comparative Foreign Policy International Political Economy International Security International Organization
POLITICAL METHODOLOGY	270. Mathematical and Statistical Foundations.  271. Advanced Statistical Applications	Two graduate seminars from the POLI 270-279 range, such as:  POLI 277 Measurement Theory  POLI 279 T/Social Network Analysis  POLI 279 T/Graphical Models and Statistical Learning	Student must prepare a substantive focus field in her/his other field (This cannot include Analytic Theory and Methods in American Politics)
POLITICAL THEORY	210AA. Systems of Political Thought: Thucydides to Rousseau  210AB. Systems of Political Thought: Kant to Rawls	Either: TWO seminar courses numbered 211-219 OR One of the above and one POLI 298 approved by the political theory field coordinator	A subject (e.g., social contract, authority, power, obligation) A genre (e.g., liberalism, Marxism, feminist political thought) A period with/without regional specialization (e.g., contemporary continental thought, 17th century English thought)